"THE CONCEPT OF EQUALITY AND THE CONSTITUTION"— SCHOLAR DISCUSSES MORAL AND LEGAL ISSUES

DAYTON, Ohio, January 5, 1987--Constitutional scholar Frederick Schauer, University of Michigan professor of law, will explore issues surrounding the constitutional guarantee of equal protection by the law at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, January 21, at the University of Dayton. The program will be in UD's Kennedy Union East Ballroom and is the fourth in a series to commemorate the Constitution's bicentennial.

The audience is encouraged to participate in the discussion as Schauer examines, among other topics, the government's role in the equality issue and the implications of affirmative action.

Schauer is a national authority on constitutional law and has taught in the law schools at the College of William and Mary, Cambridge University, and West Virginia University. He has contributed to numerous scholarly journals, and among his recent books are The Law of Obscenity and Free Speech: A Philosophical Enquiry. Schauer holds a bachelor's degree and an M.B.A. from Dartmouth College and graduated from the Harvard University School of Law in 1972.

The entire series on the Constitution is free and open to the public and is made possible in part by funding from the Ohio Humanities Council, a state-based agency of the National Endowment for the Humanities. The council provides grants to non-profit organizations in Ohio for public programs in the humanities.
